

Docker is a platform for building, sharing, and running modern applications. It simplifies setup and deployment, allowing developers to focus on code and ensure consistent results in any environment.